

Coed Leaders Hear Talks on Woman's Position in World

Mrs. Johnstone,
Mrs. Tryon, Clapper
Speak to Group

• "TO GIVE students on campus a chance to study problems women are facing today" was the purpose of the meeting for campus leaders of women's activities held Thursday at 4:30 in Strong Hall, stated Miss Ruth Atwell, Women's Activities Advisor and sponsor of the meeting.

Mrs. William Crane Johnstone, Executive Board member of the United Nations Forum, presided, introduced the speakers, Mrs. Ruth Wilson Tryon, editor for the American Association of University Women, and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, wife of the columnist and radio commentator, and chairman of the United Nations Forum.

"Now a woman can do anything she wants if she wants to badly enough. The price is high. Competition is hard. She will need more training than men," declared Mrs. Tryon, talking on employment for women.

There is less opportunity for women this year than last because there is not such a need for "any intelligent educated person." Expansion of opportunity will occur, however, in the fields of work women now dominate, such as public health, social welfare, foods and nutrition. "If you people feel you have an obligation for preserving the kind of life you lead, let me commend to you nursing," Mrs. Tryon stated. Any of the services give chances for "simply invaluable training."

Mrs. Clapper, once a professional social worker, discussed volunteer work. This type of work is left almost entirely to the women of a community, she pointed out. Knowledge about the volunteer work one wishes to do is absolutely essential for a person to be useful, she declared.

When Mrs. Clapper was in Germany before the war, a magnificent German girl, completely enthralled by her work, showed her around a women's camp. She bewailed this girl's effort in behalf of such a cause. An effort as complete as this girl's is our "individual responsibility to democracy," stated Mrs. Clapper.

Yearbook Takes Pix This Week

• DESPITE UNCERTAINTY that there will be a 1944 Cherry Tree, individual pictures of students will continue to be taken through next Thursday, according to Cherry Tree spokesmen.

Editor Mary Ring stated that all individual pictures, including Seniors, members of fraternities and sororities, members of honorary fraternities and societies, and all other activities, must be taken by next Thursday in the Student Club. Since only about one-sixth of the 600 individual pictures desired in the yearbook have been taken, the Photographic Editor urged students who are to have individual pictures taken to do it quickly. Men who will have their pictures taken are to wear white shirts, dark business suits and ties, while girls are to wear dark sweaters, with pearls.

Editor Ring expressed regret that pictures were not taken on the first two days as scheduled, but it was suggested that it would not be wise to go into debt by taking pictures when the necessary 600 subscriptions had not yet been sold. However, since the pictures must be in the hands of the printer by February 1 in order to have the Annual ready by May 1, John Benson, president of the Benson Printing Company, publishers of the Annual, advised the Cherry Tree to take the pictures and stated that his company would stand the loss should there be no yearbook.

The sorority Cherry Tree subscription drive has been in progress for a week with the following results: Pi Beta Phi, 39; Phi Sigma Sigma, 36; Kappa Kappa Gamma, 25; Sigma Kappa, 16; Phi Mu, 11; and Zeta Tau Alpha, 9.

All-U Service Flag Will Be Displayed In Lisner Library

• A LARGE service flag showing the number of University students in service and the number who have lost their lives in the country's defense will be hung in Lisner Library some time around the beginning of the spring semester. Jean Crowther, Student Council comptroller, announced Sunday night. Arrangements for the purchase of the flag have been completed by Dean William C. Johnstone and Miss Crowther.

The flag, first of its kind to appear on the campus, will be a simple one, bearing only a large blue and a large gold star, the blue representing students now on active duty in the armed forces and the gold for those who have made the supreme sacrifice. The number of former students in each circumstance will appear under the appropriate star.

Jack Britt, a graduate student who is a two-time member of the Student Elections Committee and a four-year Glee Club member, is credited with suggesting that the Student Council procure such a flag.

Northwest, for $2.20, including tax. Tickets will also be on sale at the door.

The enthusiasm of the engineers and faculty of the engineering school, as well as other University students, lends much toward making this one of the most enjoyable events of the school year. As usual, the ballroom will be decorated by the banners of the engineering societies and the red neon sign of the AIEE.

The dance is sponsored by the Engineering Council, AIEE, ASCE, ASME, Theta Tau Honorary Society, and Sigma Tau Professional Society.

Deadline for Beauty Nominees' Entries Set at February 1

VIRGINIA NALLS

Service Men Will Choose Queen
At All-U Prom

• CAMPUS BEAUTIES will parade before a judging committee composed of one officer each from the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard at the All-U prom at the Shoreham Hotel on February 17 in the hope of capturing the much-covered Beauty Queen title, Virginia Nalls, Student Council Social Chairman, announced Sunday night.

Beauty Queen aspirants must be active members of a campus organization, Miss Nalls stressed in setting out the qualifications necessary for entrance in the contest. All campus activities, social and non-social, are urged to enter any member they consider deserving of the title. Each organization, however, is limited to one nomination.

To be considered for the coveted honor, beauty nominees must submit one full-length and one head and shoulders photograph to Social Chairman Nalls before February 1.

Although contest judges have not as yet been selected, Miss Nalls disclosed that negotiations were underway to bestow the honor upon service heroes.

During intermission at the prom, O. D. K., men's honorary fraternity will "tap" men selected for membership in the organization on the basis of their outstanding college service, the campus organization having sold the most Cherry Tree subscriptions will be awarded a silver cup, and, highlighting the fete, judges will choose the new Beauty Queen.

Tickets for the dance, which is to be semi-formal, will be on sale in the Student Club. The Shoreham's main ballroom has been engaged for the occasion.

Full Speed Ahead

• IT IS NOTHING new for The Hatchet to be accused of unfair and destructive criticism. This charge has been made a number of times in our long history.

The fairness of such reproaches in the past is something we do not care to debate, but a definition of the views of the present editor and staff on the function of The Hatchet, as part of the University scene seems to be called for.

Through its news columns, The Hatchet serves as integrator, coordinator, and promoter of campus activities. It acts as a clearing house for information concerning every enterprise, faculty or student led. It is the job of those who put out The Hatchet to shape that information so that it will be effective when it reaches those for whom it is intended.

The editorial columns of the student weekly play another role.

With regard to student activities, the newspaper must serve as a critical force, to augment self-criticism of groups who are capable of this function; to assume the complete critical task for organizations which cannot or will not see the flaws in their own undertakings.

The Hatchet expects campus groups to be spurred by its critical touch; that touch is aimed to improve them. Any which fold up under the prick must have been hollow as balloons.

It is the duty of any newspaper to mould and to reflect public opinion. It is the duty of a college paper, specifically, to mould that opinion, because its editors are, for the most part, the best informed students on campus. It is the trust of the editors to reflect that opinion, because it is, as a general rule, only through the college newspaper that certain college elements other than students, namely faculty and administration, can be informed of student opinion.

These are the responsibilities with which The Hatchet is entrusted.

Those who wish to make evaluations, deprecatory or the opposite, concerning the manner in which they have been carried out will find the editor and staff an attentive audience.

But if consideration of the charges convinces us that they are not well-founded, our policy shall be: Damn the indictments; full speed ahead.

Back 'Em Up

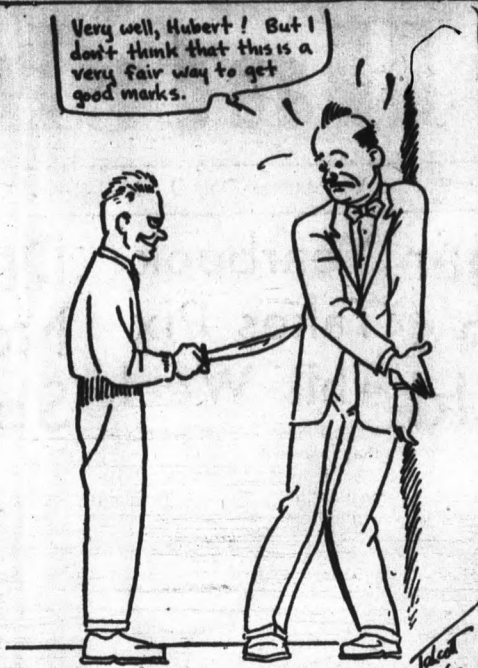

• FOR A NUMBER of weeks, now, The Hatchet has been carrying stories about the "Informals," a basketball team made up of University men which has been playing in a local amateur league. It's as close to sports of any consequence that the University has had this year.

No one could have realized, of course, when the first story about the team went in, just how good they were going to be. We know now that they are good, and we also know that these boys could have been entered in intercollegiate games, and would have come out very well indeed.

To lament the fact that no one realized sooner that we could have put a team on the boards this year which would have been no shame to the University, but really quite the opposite, comes in the category of weeping over spilt milk.

There is one thing we, the students and faculty can do, however, and that is support this team made up of university students, even though they are wearing colors other than Buff 'n' Blue.

Students who have quite loudly bewailed our lack of intercollegiate sports should be anxious to see the good basketball that this group is playing. The "Informals" are actually representing the University, officially or not, and all those who would have in former years wanted to see a student quint play, should go down to the Heurich gym and cheer.

OTHER EDITORS SAY—This is a study habit proposed by Detroit's University's Varsity News. It is offered by The Hatchet as this week's guest editorial. (Ed. Note: The above characters are fictitious and any similarity to persons living or dead is coincidental.)

New Sorority Would Add Strength to All-Hoopaw

Vivianne Hooppaw, member of a campus sorority, and vice-president of the Student Council presents in the following article the pro side of the question of the effect a new national sorority will have on already existing Greek groups.

Last week The Hatchet presented in a special article the views of a faction within Pan-Hel on the feasibility of adding a Greek letter organization to the now existing groups. If these are the arguments upon which it will rest its decision, then Pan-Hel seems to have completely missed the real issue at stake since it is not within the province of a local Pan-Hellenic chapter to exclude a national group from a University campus. Actually the controversy centers around the type of policy which will govern the future of Pan-Hel; whether it will be a short-sighted and dictatorial point of view looking only after the welfare of the established sororities, or whether it will be a long-range democratic policy, considering the welfare of the University as well as its members.

Other schools having many more than ten sororities on campus, with unquestionably high national reputations, have managed admirably, as well as adding to themselves considerable prestige, for it is well known that top national groups are rather demanding in the quality of the schools in which they establish chapters. For this reason Pan-Hel would not be acting in the best interests of George Washington University in adopting an unfriendly policy toward such organizations.

Pan-Hellenic aims to make each of its members into a more democratic type of girl. In this respect our local chapter may fail miserably this year. One hundred and thirty-five girls, who desired to join the Greek world and were not accepted, formed two Freshman clubs, and at present hope some day to become chapters of national groups. It will hardly be "democratic" of Pan-Hel if they try to withhold from these girls a sense of belonging, which they are justly entitled to.

Furthermore, fear has been expressed on the part of some campus organizations that should another sorority be admitted it would be at their expense, because of the present difficulty of getting members. It must be born in mind that sorority spirit is developed from within and imparted to those outside, and that its lack will eventually result in the death of the group in spite of Pan-Hel assistance. It might be that a new group would provide the necessary tonic for those that are sinking into such lethargy. Why should Pan-Hel attempt, by a short-sighted policy, to help such a tottering group, if there are such as G. W. U. at the expense of a strong, spirited new group that might have the energy and life to add greatly to Pan-Hel both in personnel and spirit.

It is plain that there are two sides to the narrow limits of the argument taking place in Pan-Hel at present, and both have merit. For this reason, Pan-Hel should rise above the fog in which it is enveloped and decide on the real issue at stake, both for the advancement of itself and the University.

Origins of the American Revolution
By John C. Miller

• WHEN ANY AUTHOR proposes to write a book about such an overworked subject as the American Revolution, the expected reaction is expressed by "So what?" But when that author further proposes to write from original sources and scorn the use of any material not dating from the time of the eighteenth century, the reaction changes to a "Can't be done" attitude.

Yet that is exactly what John Miller, Harvard professor has done in this book. The result is a pleasing one.

In his reliance on the newspapers, letters, journals of the Revolutionary era, Miller has come across some highly interesting, if unstartling, incidents. Presenting these old facts in a new light he has managed to make the Stamp Act vital and the Townshend Duties exciting. He injects a sort of humanness in the characters in this all too often stiff drama. He makes the statesmen of the day appear as they must have been, fallible human beings.

Too much cannot be said for the humor which animates every chapter. While some may decry this "desecration of national legends" most readers will be profoundly grateful. In a subject which seems to have no middle ground between absolute worship and complete cynicism, it is fun to find an author who can smile and admire at once.

As to the historical value of this book the reviewer is in no position to judge. As to the entertainment value however he can unequivocally state that he himself enjoyed it immensely. While this is not to be taken as a guarantee of its value, the reviewer herewith challenges any reader to read and then disagree.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of The Hatchet:

I would like to reply to the gentleman who wrote a letter to you in The Hatchet issue December 14, 1943, concerning the early closing of the library.

Being for a year and a half student assistant in the library, I think his criticisms are not only exaggerated, but not justified. Due to the war, the library is understaffed, and these assistants do all they can to help the students.

It is necessary to call in reserve books ten minutes before closing time, so the books can be shelved and charged for overnight. The only way that this student can be convinced how unjust his criticisms were is to come and take the place of an assistant for one or two nights.

Sincerely,
Mary Elizabeth Miller

To the Editor of The Hatchet:

As a senior I wish to protest against your utter disregard of and apparently callous attitude toward the importance of the recent senior elections.

Obviously you do not realize that to a senior the elections of his officers are as important as any of the activities in which he has participated in college. These officers represent his choice as his and his classmates' representatives during the all-important senior year.

With those seniors who failed to participate, I, like yourself, have little patience. But to say that the decision of the remainder of these senior students who were impressed enough with their duty to vote, matters not at all, is both unfair and completely prejudiced. Against such unfairness and prejudice, I wish to raise a small voice.

Sincerely yours,
An Irate Senior

Somewhere in England

To the Editor of The Hatchet:

My wanderings seem to have finally come to an end—at least from the appearance of things—and it is with a feeling of gratification that I can hang my proverbial hat in what may be officially described as "home." My interest in medicine has increased and no doubt my work here will be of educational value in more ways than one.

Went for a walk—12 miles—through the surrounding countryside on Sunday. The day was warm and sunny, landscape and view quite beautiful—a painter's paradise and a poet's setting for relaxation. Homes and other buildings date back three centuries or more. I was afraid to get too close to one.

Women here are broadminded, children quite clever and older than their ages indicate. One lad told us that he had a beautiful sister and when asked her age replied: "She's as old as her tongue, and slightly older than her teeth."

Dance Groups Give Religious Work Sunday

• ORCHESTRIS and the Junior Dance Group presented "Adoration of the Magi" as a part of the Young People's Evening Service at the Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church on Sunday evening.

The dance interpretation, based on a fugue by Bach, was motivated by the religious theme of the Epiphany season. The choreography was an original arrangement by Miss Elizabeth Burtner, modern dance director at the University. Costumes were designed by Mary Hopkins, settings and lighting effects were planned by Donna Hill, and music was played by Irene Lerch.

The Virgin Mary was portrayed by Lorna Grayson, who was posed in worshipful attitude on the stage as the dance began. Three groups of dancers entered consecutively to offer tribute to the Mother.

The first group included Jane Stauffer and Lois Smith; the second group was composed of Barbara Hamblin; Barbara Lyddane, and Nora Weil; Beverly Pardy, Mary Hopkins, Virginia Phillips, and Avonne Allen comprised the third group.

As the Virgin rose to gaze worshipfully at the star, the three Wisemen, Nancy Anne White, Doris Sosnick, and Mary Ring, entered to pay homage. The three groups circled around the central figures in the final rhythmic tribute of adoration.

Informal Quint Drops Double Court Loss to FBI, Perusso

• COMING A cropper against the two best teams in the league, the "Informals" dropped two heart-breakers in their first round play last week to the league-leading FBI quint and the second place Perusso aggregation.

Against the FBI five Friday night the "Informals" did the best they could in holding down the high-scoring Waller, former Southern Conference great, and Halverson, ex-Big Ten star, to twelve points and eight points a piece. But with the remainder of the FBI quintet playing inspired ball, the "Informals" were always just a point or two behind.

In the final canto, Walter sank a long field goal to break a 46-46 tie and connected with a charity toss to ice the game at 49-47.

Sunday's tilt with the Perusso five was tough and go right down to the final whistle. For over two continuous quarters the opponents fought on an even keel as they matched each other basket for basket until with two minutes to go the students sank a long one to put them ahead 52-50.

Independents Lead in Week Of 'Mural Play

• INTRAMURAL basketball opened last week with every entry playing at least one of its scheduled games. The end of the week found the Independents, only non-fraternity team in the league, at the top of the heap with three wins and no losses. Barring a surprise upset this week, the Independents are just waiting to receive their rewards as Fall semester 'Mural champs.

Using a fast break in all of their games, the Independents won their opener last Monday night against Phi Sigma Kappa 33-28. Joe Giovacchini took scoring honors with 18 points.

Thursday night in the opener Joe and his mates crushed a helpless Theta Delta Chi team 48-9 with Giovacchini again high scorer, sinking seven field goals for 14 points.

In the nine o'clock game Thursday Phi Sig bounced back from its close defeat by the Independents to sink S. A. E. 35-12. Wahab of Phi Sig was high man with 18 points.

Friday night the Independents kept up their high scoring play with a victory over Sigma Chi 36-7. Independents John Pollock and Joe Giovacchini tied for honors with 10 points apiece.

Pika forfeited twice by the score of 2-0 to Phi Sig and Sigma Chi. Games this week include Independents-S. A. E., Theta Delta Chi and the feature game of the week between Phi Sig and Sigma Chi.

Council Reports Financial Position

• IN MAKING a general report of recent Student Council expenditures at the weekly Council meeting Friday night, President Charles Daugherty announced that $25 from Council's miscellaneous fund had been awarded the Fencing Club to pay for equipment recently purchased. Orchestris had been granted $50 to hire an auditorium for a forthcoming dance production, and $35 had been expended to relieve Cue and Curtain of a loss incurred by costume expenses for the recently presented "Dark Eyes," which were not contemplated in the original budget.

Daugherty also announced that the dramatic society will produce two plays next semester, the first to be cast by the middle of February.
